Classical Composers: A Home in Your Head for the Musical Masters is a delightful book by DesirÃ© Scarambone, illustrated by her husband Dr. Bernardo Scarambone. If you've heard of Memory Palaces, you'll be familiar with how this book is put together and how it helps students remember facts about composers, where they were from, their names, what era they lived in, and more. For students like me, who always had a little difficulty recalling facts such as names and places, this book will be a gold mine of information! By following the suggestions of the author, students will quickly learn about the master composers in a fun and engaging way, and they'll be thirsty for more. The way the author presents the years of each era is brilliant, the memory aids are perfect, and I absolutely could not put this book down once I started reading it. The illustrations are a perfect accompaniment to the stories, the mental images the author creates are lively and vivid, and they are perfect for visual learners as well as kids who love listening to stories; they'll be loved and appreciated by all students who are learning about the master composers. Classical Composers: A Home in Your Head for the Musical Masters is required reading in my studio from now on! Who can use this book? Everyone! It would be an amazing tool in the studio as well as the classroom, perfect for a music history or composer unit, reviewing for a festival, used in a group music class or music camp, it could correspond with a bulletin board in your classroom or studio, serve as a substitute teacher activity, as a cross-curricular activity in which students could illustrate as they listen to the story, and so much more.
